Question 5: What office might we contact to learn the value of the current contract?

Answer: The Federal Funding Accountability Transparency Act requires FAA to make procurement award data publicly available. Government-wide award data is sent through FPDS-NG (Federal Procurement Data System – Next Generation) to the public website USASpending.gov. The Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) provides any person the right to obtain federal agency records unless the record is protected by one of nine exemptions.
